

KUROKI PLAYS HIDE AND SEEK

Mysterious Movements of the Japanese Leader Puzzle the Russian Forces.

ARE UNABLE TO DISCOVER ENEMY

Kuropatkin's Scouts Report That They Have Lost All Trace of the Wily Jap and His Army—Searching in Vain for Trace.

(Special by Scripps-McLure.)

London, Oct. 4.—While information from the seat of war is very brief, there is ground for belief that the Japanese are planning a movement near Mukden, the ominous silence concerning which is causing the Russians considerable anxiety.

The war office at St. Petersburg admits that there is a feeling of unrest in official circles since the receipt of a dispatch from Gen. Kuropatkin, in which he conveys the news that his scouts have been unable to locate Kuroki's army. In other words, the Russians completely have lost track of the entire right of the Japanese army. The war office intimates that this condition may contain the elements of a big surprise.

Jap Forces Are Gone.

The movements in the last few days of Oyama's forces have been more or less mysterious, to say the least. No dispatches have been received to indicate just where his several armies are located. This fact, added to the confession of Kuropatkin that Kuroki simply has dropped from view, so to speak, gives additional proof that the Japanese doubtless are planning a big coup.

St. Petersburg, however, still maintains its belief that while Kuropatkin is disposing his forces to meet any possible contingency, he will not permit himself to be drawn into a general engagement, but will withdraw to the pass.

Report Warship Sunk.

Although nothing now has been received regarding the situation at Port Arthur, a wild rumor from Shanghai caused considerable gossip here among those who are closely watching the movements around the beleaguered fortress. The Shanghai dispatch said that a Russian warship, presumably the cruiser Bayan of the Port Arthur fleet, had anchored off Cutzlaft Island in Hang-Chau bay.

It was suggested if the cruiser Bayan had gotten away from Port Arthur it was probable that the fleet had gone to sea and engaged Togo, but a later dispatch denied that the cruiser was the Bayan or any other of the Port Arthur fleet.

Report Heavy Fighting.

The Daily Telegraph's Nagasaki correspondent, cabling under date of Sept. 25, says:

"Terrible artillery conflicts are adding to the horrors of the situation at Port Arthur. On Sept. 22 and 23 the Russians made sorties against positions held by the Kanagawa regiment and desperate fighting ensued. The Japanese force was practically annihilated, only one noncommissioned officer and eleven men remaining alive out of the 4,000 who went into the engagement.

"The Japanese tunnel into Port Arthur was completed on Sept. 24 and was immediately used. The result is unknown."

War Loan of $40,000,000.

The Standard's Tokyo correspondent reports that at a conference of bankers it was decided to issue immediately a third domestic war loan of $10,000,000, completing the loans for the current fiscal year.

There have been a few small outpost fights at Mukden, but otherwise the situation is unchanged.

The Japanese are active westward of Mukden. The Russian cavalry forces are active in that direction. Their horses are in splendid condition and the roads are good. The Japanese also are active eastward and have been reinforced.

IROQUOIS CASE GOES OVER ON PLEA OF DEFENDANTS

Judge Kerston Grants Change of Venue From a Cook County Court, on Ground of Prejudice.

(Special by Scripps-McLure.)

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 4.—Judge Kerston this morning granted a petition of the defense for a change of venue in the Iroquois theatre case. The defense produced fifty thousand affidavits representing that the defendants could not secure a fair trial in Cook county. The judge said the failure of the state's attorney to fight the change of venue placed him in a bad light. He said he had received an unsigned letter stating he would be visited by a vigilance committee in case he granted the petition. The county in which the cases will be tried is to be announced later.

PAYNE RALLIES, BUT HIS CONDITION IS STILL BAD

Physicians Give But Small Hopes of His Recovery—His End May Come at Any Time.

(Special by Scripps-McLure.)

Washington, Oct. 4.—The physicians have issued the following bulletin at 10:30: "Postmaster General Payne has again rallied. His heart action is very feeble. His condition is grave. (Signed) Osler, Rixey, Mendenhall, Grayson." When Dr. Osler left the consultation room he said, although the patient had rallied somewhat he feared improvement was only temporary. President Roosevelt called at the apartments this morning as usual.

SURGING CROWDS AT SENATOR HOAR'S BIER.

Scores of Women Faint During Crush
About the Remains of the Statesman Lying in State.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 4.—The popular desire to view the body of the late United States Senator George F. Hoar resulted in an unparalleled crush here Monday, in the course of which scores of women fainted and were all but trampled to death by the surging crowds.

The body of the late senator lay in state at the city hall throughout the afternoon and it was viewed by thousands. The crowd gathered early, and before the doors were opened fully 50,000 people were packed between Lincoln square and the city hall.

SPOONER COMING HERE!

Will Speak at the Myers House Next Saturday Evening—Opening of the Campaign in Rock County—Will Discuss National and State Issues—Large Attendance Is Expected.

On Saturday evening, United States Senator John C. Spooner will speak at the Myers opera-house on state and national politics. Arrangements for his reception and for the meeting will be made later, word having just been received that Senator Spooner will be here. He comes under the auspices of the Rock county republican committee and his reception will doubtless be one of the events of the present campaign. As a public speaker, Senator Spooner has an enviable reputation and at the present time the interest in the state campaign will redouble the interest in the occasion.

MORE STUDENTS THAN LAST YEAR

Two Hundred and Sixteen More Students at University
This Semester.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—Special.—Registrar W. D. Hestand, of the Wisconsin university, reported yesterday that the total enrollment of the institution is 2,207, a gain of 216 students over last year. President C. R. Van Hise, held a conference with Mayor Curtis, of Madison, and requested him to give strict orders to the chief of police to have all students arrested who disregard the laws. He wants the student prisoners to be treated just the same as any other person that is arrested for committing an offense. The president informed the mayor that he will expel all students from the university who are convicted in court. Eight students, who indulged in a drunken, carousal one night during the summer session of the university and who were "fired" by the faculty, have made application to be reinstated. The faculty, however, refused to reinstate them.

BELIEVES HE HAS CURE FOR DREADED DISEASE

Surgeon General O'Reilly Obtains Favorable Results in Case of Soldier Held in Isolation.

Washington, Oct. 4.—In his annual report Surgeon General R. M. O'Reilly shows that the general health of the army has improved during the past year. From an average strength of 19,029 American troops in the Philippines 1,074 were invalided home, a rate of 5.64 per thousand. There were 271 deaths among the troops in the Philippines, so that the losses by death and invaliding amounted to 70.57 per thousand.

The Philippine soldiers were singularly fortunate in the matter of injuries, having a rate of only 37.29 per thousand, but their mortality rate of 3.34 is almost as large as the combined death rates of white and colored troops for external causes.

The surgeon general believes it is possible to cure leprosy. At any rate decidedly favorable results have followed the treatment of the leper soldier now held at isolation at one of the Southern army posts. The man is now permitted to wander about the island at his will, provided he does not enter any building save his own or approach anyone nearer than eight feet.

SECRET SOCIETY RULE A BAD ONE

So the Visiting Board of the Madison City Schools Announce.

(Special by Scripps-McLure.) Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—The citizens' visiting committee of the Madison public schools has denounced high school Greek letter secret societies as a serious menace to that social democracy which has always been an important factor in the American public school. The committee is of the opinion that these societies also demoralize in their tendencies and tend to divert their members subversive to good citizenship. A recommendation was made that Greek letter societies receive no recognition from the school authorities and that no member of those organizations be permitted to represent the school in literary or athletic contests.

UNPAID TAXES IN STATE TREASURY

Small Road Pays Up Back Taxes to the State Treasurer at Madison.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie railroad company has paid to State Treasurer T. M. Purcell, the sum of $6,601.37 for unpaid taxes, covering a period of seven years. The company was compelled to pay these taxes for granting rebates, adjusted rates or return payments to favored shippers in Wisconsin, of which no report had been made in the annual statements of gross earnings. In transmitting the money C. W. Gardner, the auditor of the company, stated that the money is secured taxes, twenty cents from the annual reports of the gross earnings of the road. The investigation leading to this payment and others that are expected to follow was made in accordance with an act passed by the last legislature authorizing the railroad commissioner to make an investigation of the books of the railroad companies operating in Wisconsin. Roads doing business in this state must pay under the license fee system 4 per cent on their gross earnings.

Pliny Norcross, member of the Wisconsin legislature of 1885, said with regard to the allegations of Isaac Stephenson: "Senator Spooner has raised the cloud of implied bribery and corruption that spread over every member of the legislature of 1885, of which I was a member, by his forceful, truthful, and unprejudiced exposition which was made public yesterday morning."

"It is an excellent letter and one which will be productive of much good throughout the state. It should convince any fair minded man who reads it."

"I was a member of the legislature that elected Senator Spooner the first time. I was in a delicate position owing to the fact that Gen. Lucius Fairchild, his opponent, had been my captain in the army and Spooner my classmate at the university. I never saw an election of any kind, I have none, that was freer from any improper influence than was this one."

GENERAL TALK ON THE LETTER

Senator Spooner Is To Speak in Milwaukee
Tomorrow Evening, at the Davidson.

NORCROSS TALKS ON THE LETTER

Other Members of the State Legislature of Eighty-Five Endorse Spooner, and Denounce the Charges.

Not only has United States Senator Spooner answered the cruel attack of the governor and Isaac Stephenson on his own good name and the good name of dead men, but he has come into the lime light of publicity and will speak tomorrow night at the Davidson theatre, Milwaukee, on campaign issues, both state and national. Senator Spooner can do much to dispel the doubts that have assailed the minds of many of the leading republicans of the state, and the rank and file who are glad to hear what our talented senator has to say. At the republican convention in Madison, at the opera-house, Senator Spooner stepped before that assemblage of delegates and said, "Gentlemen of the republican convention of Wisconsin," and the audience that packed the Fuller opera-house went wild with enthusiasm. They were the words that cemented the gathering into a convention of republicans. That Senator Spooner has awakened to the responsibility of the situation is now apparent and he will doubtless continue his campaigning until election.

Bitter Denunciation

From all over the state come letters from members of the legislature of 1885 endorsing Senator Spooner's article made public yesterday. Men of state and national reputation, such as Congressman E. S. Miller, of Sturgeon Bay, Andrew G. Nelson, of Waupaca, Judge Patrick of Ashland, Judge Westcott of Shawano, Norman L. James of Richland Center, D. V. Morgan of Albany, Dr. Fred Byers of Monroe, H. O. Fairchild of Green Bay, and Pliny Norcross of this city, all members of the legislature of 1885, testify in the strongest language possible at the injustice of the charges brought by the Stephens article regarding the use of money in the first election of Senator Spooner to the United States Senate. H. O. Fairchild's testimony is particularly interesting, due to the fact he was a member of the assembly from Marinette, the home of Isaac Stephenson who claimed he spent $22,000 to elect Spooner. This morning the Recorder, a supposedly democratic paper, but whose columns are more often filled with La Follette articles, has a cordial communication reflecting upon the good name and integrity of a man whom the unknown writer who signs his name Non Fanderson, claims received $25,000 for working a United States senator election, while the writer admits he received $25 for the purpose of working for a candidate for the United States senate. This discredited ward-heeler whose influence was bought as one buys commodities takes occasion to rush into print through the columns of an alleged democratic paper.

Norcross's Opinion

Pliny Norcross, member of the Wisconsin legislature of 1885, said with regard to the allegations of Isaac Stephenson: "Senator Spooner has raised the cloud of implied bribery and corruption that spread over every member of the legislature of 1885, of which I was a member, by his forceful, truthful, and unprejudiced exposition which was made public yesterday morning."

"It is an excellent letter and one which will be productive of much good throughout the state. It should convince any fair minded man who reads it."

"I was a member of the legislature that elected Senator Spooner the first time. I was in a delicate position owing to the fact that Gen. Lucius Fairchild, his opponent, had been my captain in the army and Spooner my classmate at the university. I never saw an election of any kind, I have none, that was freer from any improper influence than was this one."

"There was no great contest. We balloted once, and Col. Spooner was elected. The thought of money being used is preposterous. It never occurred to any of us. It was not necessary. Col. Spooner was elected on his merits, and I am glad he has shown as he has. It is up to Mr. Stephenson to explain his statements as published."

Opinion in Madison

In commenting upon the letter of Senator Spooner the Wisconsin State Journal says with reference to Isaac Stephenson: "The reckless and malicious mouth" ings of an old man who cares not for his own good name must not be allowed to besmirch that of a man jealous of the respect of his fellow citizens, whom he has served so well."

Another Break Word comes from Marinette, the home of the good, honest Mr. Stephenson, that the county so-called republican committee, under the domination of the La Follette faction, has refused to make arrangements for a speech by Speaker Cannon, of the last congress, because he is accompanied by United States Senator Joseph V. Quarles. This is republicanism to vengeance. The action of the committee is endorsed by the La Follette state committee, who do not recognize the fact national politics are supreme over local state differences.

Another Lie Nailed

Out in the western part of the state there is published a paper called the Lancaster Teller. In support of the recent article in McClure's Magazine it states the following as a fact:

"And he may remember how a man with the money of some of those rich lumbermen in his fist he went to the editor of that same Janesville Gazette that has been so vicious toward La Follette, and induced that editor to start with an editorial a move to make Spooner the senator instead of Fairchild. That this was followed up by a series of papers with some other purchasable paper. And when the legislature met, a gang of lobbyists, the lumbermen, and the railroad agents, were there to work the members, and induce them not to elect Fairchild, but to elect the unscrupulous supporter to the senate. Doesn't he remember? You see there were plenty of channels for Sawyer and Stephenson's $52,000, and some more. Stephens did not go into all the particulars."

Life Pure and Simple

Colonel Nicholas Smith, at that time the editor of the Gazette, says of the charges: "On Oct. 16, 1884, Spooner made a speech at Janesville for Blaine and Rusk and he made a great impression. Over 5,000 people heard it and were impressed with his masterly effort."

"Two or three weeks afterwards Orden H. Fethers walked to my office and we began to discuss the senatorship. He suggested that I write an editorial favoring Spooner, because of his great ability as a speaker and as a lawyer. I said I would consider the matter and I did consider it. I came out with the editorial in which I paid tribute to Fairchild for his twenty-one years of service, but I compared him with Spooner, and showed wherein the natural ability of Spooner better qualified him for the position. I followed this with a series of articles, and they were copied all over the state. Although Rock county had been for Fairchild when the convention met, the entire delegation was for Spooner."

"I never received a cent and to my knowledge there was not a penny spent to obtain the support of any newspapers in the state. And I know that all the legislators from Rock county were men who could not be bribed. It was the cleanest senatorial campaign I have ever seen. If money was used it certainly was not in the northern part of the state, or I would have heard something of it. The story in the Teller is not true as far as the Janesville Gazette is concerned."

Further Light

Not only was the Gazette not purchased for this campaign but it was the first newspaper in the state to bring out the name of John C. Spooner as a candidate for the senate. The country had been swept by the democrats and Wisconsin was one of the few states that would elect a republican senator. Hon. Orden Fethers, as Mr. Smith stated, was one of the gentlemen to first suggest Mr. Spooner's name. Mr. Smith endorsed the thought and the Gazette urged upon the voters and the state the necessity of the election of a man whose knowledge of the law and whose forceful speaking would help hold the discouraged senate into line for another campaign. The boom was started without thought of money recompense and before Senator Spooner had announced his candidacy

REV. VAUGHN ON "UNSEEN FORCES"

PREACHES SERMON BASED ON TRUTHS OF LEARNING.

TO GIVE SAME AT WAUKESHA

Unseen Forces Rule Scientific, Mechanical and Natural Worlds—If We Yield, We Will.

Reverend R. M. Vaughn, who will deliver the annual sermon at the Baptist state convention Wednesday afternoon, delivered Sunday morning at the Baptist church the address that he will give there on "Unseen Forces." His text was the seventeenth verse of the sixth chapter of II Kings: "And Elisha prayed and said, 'Lord, I pray thee, open his eyes that he may see.' And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man; and he saw, and behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire, round about Elisha."

Unseen Army. He said in part, "Elisha followed the plans of the king of Assyria who had determined to kill him by calling on the Lord to show this man the unseen forces of protection. We do not know what the army of the Lord was, but we do know that it all around him, the unseen forces. But are there unseen forces? Are there spiritual powers? Nature bears witness of the unseen forces. In the flow of the river, the fall of the autumn leaf and the flaming path of the meteor, all of which demonstrate that there is a force of gravitation but no one ever saw this force; they see the result of the gravitation and know it is there, but gravitation is an unseen force."

Forces of Nature. "As the electric current is sent through the telegraph wire by the manipulation of the key we are able to see the movement of the receiving apparatus but we can not see the force that impels this movement—electricity is one of the unseen forces of nature. We can notice the growth of trees, the opening of the flower and the ripening of the fruit, but we are unable to observe the force which organizes and changes the soil and the rain and the sunshine into the tree and the flower and the fruit. Life, too, is an unseen force of nature. That man has not looked upon the surface who says he believes only that which he sees."

Science and Reality. "All the developments of science prove that there are unseen forces. Reality is a proof also for, who ever saw a thought in the brain of man? The brain has been laid open to view and the nervous twitches have been watched but these twitches are not thoughts, they are the accompaniments of thoughts. Intelligence is also one of the unseen forces. Christian Dwight laid down his rifle after the final close of the Boer war and went home with the conviction that no matter how ship-borne were his fellow fighters on the vessel they could not equal the educated young soldiers of the English and now that man is doing all in his power to strengthen and maintain the rule of intelligence in South Africa."

Japan's Power. "Japan is now driving Russia from the east because of the superior education of the soldiers who are fighting for the right to work out the destinies of their country over those soldiers of a nation where only one in fifty can read or write. The literary, technical and scientific schools of Japan are conquering the illiterate and ignorant product of a despotically ruled people. In 1776 the British minister paid little attention to the Continental army, but the words of William Pitt proved all too true. 'It is not so much that we must take into account the guns of the Americans as their sentiment of liberty.' It was the sentiment of liberty that existed in the hearts of the men at Valley Forge who left their bloody footprints on the snow that won for America her independence; but was ever a sentiment seen? Ideas, not battalions, rule the world."

Love a Force. "Mightiest of all unseen forces is that of love. We are capable of seeing a cup of water but we see not the love of the disciple for Christ. In the conquest of Guatemala the army of the Spaniards was thrice repulsed, but a Monk set the scriptures to verse, taught the captured Indians his songs and released them. They sang them to the rulers of the land and peace was secured between the Spaniards and the Guatemalans by the love of this Christian Monk for these Indians."

"We see the powers in the summer months but they are only the evidence of the season, we see not the summer itself. God, an Unseen Force. "So we shall never see God in any different way than we do at the present, but we may see him larger and better. What the air is to the bird that God is to us, his soul is the soul of our soul. Our supreme need is to see God, that the eyes of the heart may be enlightened. Jesus said: 'Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.'"

"The unseen forces are not meaningless—they are real; they have a meaning for our lives; they are for us to use. Elisha made use of the unseen forces and saved his servants and conquered the Syrians. The consciousness of the power of the unseen forces gives serenity of mind."

Their Use. "Abraham went in search of new abodes relying on the unseen force of God to direct his footsteps and preserve him in the wilderness. Moses went out of the land of Egypt trusting that this same unseen force would protect him and his followers from the wrath of Pharaoh. Stephen was stoned outside the gate, but because he believed in the unseen force, the heavens were opened to his view and he beheld Jesus standing on the right side of God."

Quest of Power. "Everywhere now is there a quest for power. In the industrial realm they seek the power of nature and a method of its use. Science is supremely concerned in the quest for power and they have harnessed the falls of Niagara and the rapids of the Zambesi. The Christians are in search of spiritual power to work with God. One law prevails for all three: If we obey the law of operation of a force the force will obey. The Chinese discovered gunpowder could be made from a composition of certain substances that had always existed but never used this invention. It was left the European people to discover a practical use for it. So also is electricity as it is, an immense dynamo, but it was not harnessed until recent centuries. The discovery of its use belongs to a still later time. First it was found out that it could be generated by mechanical force, then chemical force, then Morse found a means for its transmission and now it shows its power without being sent over wires."

"If we give ourselves up to the forces they give themselves to us—if we yield we win. Elisha obeyed the unseen forces and they stood at his command. Dominion is our power."

FOOTBALL TALK AT UNIVERSITY

What the Team Is Doing—What New Plays Are Being Tried—What Results.

The football situation at the University of Wisconsin is one of great worry to the coaches and to those who had confidently expected that the Badgers this fall would be in the lead for the western collegiate gridiron championship. Two weeks hence a hard game is expected with Notre Dame at Milwaukee and a month from now comes the one big game of the season to be played at Madison, the championship contest with the Yosts' scoring machine from Ann Arbor. A month ago the prospects for the Cardinal were, the brightest ever in the history of the game at Madison. There was an abundance of heavy material either assured, to be coming. The prediction was apparently that warranted that Wisconsin would have a heavy team and with the early start of the training it was expected that Wisconsin would be ahead of the rivals in point of development.

The situation now is that nearly a dozen heavy and experienced candidates have come and gone and some of the best men failed to put in an appearance. Men like Walter Stephens, Claire, Simpson and Schneider left Madison, because they had not sufficient academic preparation for entrance into the university. Others left for the same reason and some, it is now known, left because they were not being given a fair share of the coaches. The result will be no heavier team this fall than last. There is much dissatisfaction felt here. The coaches are severely criticised, perhaps unjustly, because they have not tried the candidates evenly and given all an equal show. The faculty is blamed because President Van Hise would not let down the bars of admission and allow the matriculation of star athletes who were deficient in preparation. The teams is in poor physical condition, owing largely to the fact that the prevailing hot weather has made it impossible to give hard scrimmaging work.

The training table has just been started and until the present time little attention to the care of the men.

One of the most serious drawbacks at Madison this fall is the fact that the graduate coach system is being applied and the best results are scarcely to be expected at any. Head Coach Curtis and Assistant Coach Coehms have been assisted thus far by Emil Skow, formerly center rush for Wisconsin, and Arne C. Lerum, a star guard of two years ago. Lerum will be here throughout the season, but Skow will shortly return to his law practice in Ar. Old stars from the alumni will be called upon to help in the coaching, and as none of these remain long the coaching department will be a series of relays with the exception of the head coach and assistants. Coach Curtis announced a list of old stars of Wisconsin eleven who would help at various times during the season. Included were the names of Rev. H. Jacobs, Henry Coehms, William Hazzard, Fred Kull, Jerry Kurland, Joe Fogg, Paul Trull, Jerry Kurland, Alton Abbott and William Jinnens.

The coaches insist that the team is only temporarily picked and that they are not satisfied with the present arrangement, but will change and shake up the players as soon as a chance for improvement is apparent in the light scrimmages thus far. The following arrangement has predominated:

The First Game. Wisconsin's first football game of the season showed that the strong hope of the Badger coaches this season is in end runs rather than plunges through the line. This is partly in view of the fact that the supposed weakest places in the teams of Michigan and Minnesota are at the ends. It said that Coaches Curtis and Coehms have determined that they have not much chance of pushing the Wolverines down the field by line bucking tactics, that stronger teams will have probably stronger centers, guards and tackles last year, but that new ends are being developed at Ann Arbor and Minneapolis and consequently Wisconsin must have a great end-rushing game to be effective in the Michigan game a month hence and in the Minnesota game in November. The plans of the Wisconsin coaches turn on these two big games.

The opinion prevails in the coaching department here that Chicago will have the strongest ends this year in the west and will be also particularly strong at the tackles. It is also believed that the changes in the playing rules, which Coach Stagg assisted to make, will work to the advantage of the Maroon coach and team. For Stagg, it is said, always has strong tacklers and knows more about offensive work with the tackles than any other coach in the west.

The cry at Madison, therefore, is: "Watch our ends run around Michigan and Minnesota, and if we win these games a way will be found to take care of Stagg's tackle plays at Marshall field Thanksgiving day."

AT ORFORDVILLE ON FRIDAY EVENING

Senator John M. Whitehead Will Address Citizens on "Taxation Legislation."

Senator John M. Whitehead will deliver an address on "Taxation Legislation" at the Orfordville opera house Friday evening of this week. He was greeted with a large and enthusiastic audience on the occasion of his appearance here a week ago last Friday when he discussed "Primary Election" and his forthcoming address on "Taxation Legislation" will be awaited with much interest.

NOW HEAD OF GREAT ADVERTISING FIRM

Paul E. Derrick, Who Was Formerly Agent for Domestic Sewing Machines, in This City.

Paul E. Derrick, of the Paul E. Derrick Advertising Agency, of New York city, and undoubtedly the greatest of his kind, recently took into partnership with him, M. Leo Starke, a special advertising agent, located in the same city. It will be remembered that Mr. Derrick was at one time located in Janesville and in partnership with Frank B. White, had offices in the old Lippin block for the agency of the Domestic Sewing Machines. Then Mr. Derrick originated the scheme of an advertising commercial rate-book for the use of newspapers and after having carried on this kind of a business successfully for several years, he opened up the Paul E. Derrick Advertising Agency into which Mr. Starke has recently been taken, as a partner. The agency is now being remodelled and lines that will not only make it one of the most effective in the United States, but will place it in the world operating international. Immediately after the consolidation of the two agencies Mr. Derrick sailed for London, where he will reside permanently, supervising all the business in Great Britain and on the continent. On the fifteenth of this month Mr. Starke severs his connection as the special representative of some of the most prominent newspapers of the nation and will take entire charge of the Derrick agency's business in the United States and Canada. Mr. Derrick is president of the agency under the new arrangement, and Mr. Starke acts as secretary and treasurer, no other parties holding any stock.

Mr. E. Derrick bears an enviable name in the advertising and publishing world of business integrity and creative methods. Long a student of advertising, from the manufacturers' standpoint, he has laid the foundations of some of the most important campaigns in the world. Fertilizer of ideas he originated the Good Twin, the Pettifogger Bears, the Quaker of Quaker Oats, and other well known advertising symbols, and his office has handled for many years the appropriations of the American Cereal company, N. K. Fairbanks company abroad, and other international advertisers. Ten years ago Mr. Derrick went to London to lay out a campaign for Quaker Oats, with the results that a permanent office was established. The Derrick agency also has foreign offices and connections in Paris, Vienna, Sweden, Buenos Aires, the City of Mexico and Cape Town.

Railroad officials expect a heavy west bound movement of freight during the coming winter. They base their expectations on the high prices which farmers are now obtaining for their products. While at times in the past prices for wheat or other grains may have reached a level as high or higher than at present, it is doubtful if there ever was a year when the farmer stood in position to obtain as high prices for all the products of his farm as he does now.

LOVE FEAST WITH THE ELECTRIC CO.

CONCLUDED SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL LAST EVENING.

SESSION SQUALLY AT FIRST

L. B. Carle Resented Certain Harsh Words—Mooted Wire Ordinance Was Repealed.

There was a deal of oratory and some quibbling at the council meeting last evening and after that the city fathers concluded the wire ordinance and shook hands with the individual members of the Janesville Electric Co. The dove of peace hovering low in the manner pleasant to see. Somebody must have said something pretty harsh in an "aside" at the last session when the repeal ordinance was introduced, because L. B. Carle, in addressing the meeting, said: "I have lived in Janesville fifty-one years and during that time I have spent many days and weeks working for the welfare of the city. At one time I put in six weeks without compensation either from the city or from the electric company. I went to straighten out the North-West road. I've tried to live a reasonable honest life and it was reserved until this day for me to be branded as a thief in the common council. Gentlemen, I'm no thief. I defy any man to show that I ever stole a cent or ever failed to live up to an agreement I had made."

Helping in Upbuilding. Continuing he said: "We're all anxious for the welfare of Janesville. The cotton mills made a failure and were going to decay. The people wanted someone to improve the property. We are contributing to the upbuilding of the city and men conceived the idea of buying this property and the electric plant and consolidating the two. In order to be in a position to encourage manufacturing concerns to come to Janesville. These men bought this electric plant and when they had secured it they wanted a first rate plant. It was in poor order then, but so far as the poles and wires were concerned it was in the same condition as it had been from the beginning."

Improving Upper Dam. "What did we do? The first thing we said those city lamps are not good. We bought new ones. We said: The next thing we must do if we are to be successful in fulfilling our contract with citizens is to create power. Power is the essence of the whole thing. We went to work to improve the upper dam and if you've been there you must confess that we've put in a splendid plant. (We acknowledge that we bought out a company that was not fulfilling its contract with the city but we are doing the best we can to fulfill it.)"

Anxious for Safeguards. "Our city's chief engineer has said that the wires are dangerous and at times prevent him from doing justice to his work. We had a talk with him. We said: 'Place them as he wishes. We said: 'We'll put them in a hurry man and it's hard to get help but at any time when there is anything that ought to be done, spring to President Jeffris and he'll see that it is done.' Then there was spring upon us this wire ordinance, requiring us to put all our wires underground in certain sections of the city. I concede that it would be a good thing if they were underground. But the difficulty is here. It would be foolish to try to supply lights without duplicating the power. We want to improve the lower plant as we have the upper one. If we are compelled to put our wires underground to borrow money, it is quite right to say: 'You do it now—tomorrow. We think it a hardship. Further than that we hardly think that a stranger who had improved his plant as we have in a short space of time would be asked to put the wires underground. Such a demand at this time seems harsh, unkind, and ungenerous.'"

M. G. Jeffris Speaks. M. G. Jeffris said: "I don't know anything I can add, except to repeat some phases of the question. Under this ordinance we are given five years to put all our wires underground in certain sections of the city. In the meantime no new wires can be strung. It means that we must stop short or go to an unreasonable expense. As Mr. Carle stated, we purchased the cotton factories when they were empty and idle and filled them with workmen. During more than a year we have been constructing a new power plant, one of the best in Wisconsin. We have encountered many difficulties, not the least of which was the highest water in twenty-five years. The plant, when we took it, was not in first class condition. We spent $8,000 in improving the city lights alone. We said nothing to the council on this matter, except to request them to determine the kind of lights they wanted and approve."

Would Mean Big Outlay. "Now this ordinance is brought up to require us to put our wires underground. We say it is unreasonable. We do feel that if some strangers had come here and bought this plant they would not have been required to take this action and refrain from stringing another wire until it should be accomplished. We say it isn't right. Right now we desire to put some heavier wires to replace others now in use in order that we may furnish better light. I take it that this council is interested in the welfare of the city of Janesville. The men in the Electric Co. are more interested in the city than in the Electric Co. Now to compel us to remove our poles and put our wires underground on West and Milwaukee street between Academy and Division, on Main street, between the Thoroughgood factory and Court street, and on North River street as far as West Bluff street, would involve an outlay of from $20,000 to $30,000 when we have already made a large investment here. We think the council should treat us fairly and justly as other citizens, manufacturers and taxpayers."

"We are interested in the efficiency of the fire department as much as any people in Janesville." Alderman Jackman: "Would any underground ordinance with any modifications providing for such action at any future time be satisfactory to you?"

Mr. Jeffris: "Why yes—now you see we will be engaged next year and the year after in improving the Monterey plant. I should say this—that at the end of ten years it would be safe enough. I don't think the size of the city justifies it. I'll agree that the wires would be better underground. But our estimates are never or too low. Well, now, when you come to put in additional connections you got $20,000 easily. At five per cent that would mean $1,500 a year and with the additional tax and wear not one cent less than $2,000 a year. The size of the city doesn't require it. There are four blocks of wires in Madison underground and Madison is one and half times the size of Janesville. As measured in the benefit to the city, the expense isn't justified."

Had Lower Estimate. Alderman Jackman: "I had an estimate which was $10,000 lower—that is to say it was $20,000." Mr. Jeffris: "You see we couldn't afford to put down a system to supply just what we've got now. We would have to look five years in advance and build our conduits and lay our cables accordingly in order to avoid tearing up the streets from time to time."

Willing to Quit-Claim. Ald. Constock: "What about the approaches to the Western avenue bridge?" Mr. Jeffris: "We started to construct a barn near the bridge and when Alderman Grove objected I believe I said that the bridge was on our property. Did you take it that I intended to take any steps to put the city off that property, Alderman Grove?"

Alderman Grove: "I didn't know how to take it." Mr. Jeffris: "Well, now I will incidentally say that the Electric Co. is willing to quit-claim to the city that property." Ald. Constock: "There has been a pile of dirt there for months."

Mr. Jeffris: "The Electric Co. did not put that dirt there. My impression is that a street was never laid from River street east."

Ald. Matheson: "Who does own the approaches—the Electric Company?" Mr. Jeffris after acknowledging that this was the case, said that the Water Power Co. would be willing to deed to the city a strip of land the width of the bridge. "We will give you a conveyance for a strip running from the south side of the bridge to any point on River street that would make the approach to the bridge as wide as the bridge itself—that is to say, we'll convey such portion as with the Bailey strip will give access."

Ald. Grove: "Is that old office building going to stand there?" Mr. Jeffris: "Well, now I think I can say that the gentleman connected with the Electric Co. are not decent citizens—as to whether or not they intend to move that old building it has never occurred to me. I think that if there's any objection, we'll co-operate with any move to fix it up."

Ordinance Is Repealed. The ordinance for repealing the ordinance prohibiting the erection of poles and wires on certain streets and compelling the removal of such wires and poles now standing within five years, was advanced to its third reading. Alderman Jackman offered an amendment giving the Hook Company Telephone Co. the right to erect poles and string wires on all streets and thoroughfares, but it was found on investigation that this right was given in the franchise. He said that he hadn't changed his opinion in the matter of having the "wires underground. The only argument advanced was that it was expensive. He thought everybody would be willing to grant plenty of time and he had not interpreted the measure to mean that the company could not string new wires within the five years. In his opinion the ordinance ought not to be repealed, though he would admit that it might be amended. On the call for ayes and nays, eight answered in favor of the repeal and one against it.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY.

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the hair is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the worm throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the Committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CON-VENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 22d, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected said John C. Spooner, J. V.
Quarles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Baensch as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin was the REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

WHO ARE REPUBLICANS.

The two conventions held in Madison last May were so evenly divided that the decision of the highest court in the state is found necessary to determine which had a legal majority. The delegates to both of these conventions were republicans but the factional strife was so bitter that both factions have been trying to read the other out of the party for the past four months.

The men who composed the gynasium convention are denounced as "La Folletteites and intriguers," and the men who made up the opera-house convention are stamped as "bolters," and so the warfare has gone on.

It might be well for both factions to remember that half the party cannot read the other half out of existence, however much it may desire to do so.

The republican party of Wisconsin, while being used as a football, just now, is not a plaything and while the chasm which divides it may seem impassable, the party is a unit on all of the great principles of republicanism.

The contest now going on is purely local, and while it may require time and a few political funerals on both sides to settle old scores, the day of settlement will come, and the party of the state will again be united.

The press of the state is largely republican. It is as loyal to the party today as at any time in history and it will continue to be loyal.

The question is frequently asked,
"What will the republican papers do if the supreme court renders a decision in favor of La Follette?"
The Gazette will assume the responsibility of stating what it won't do, and that is, they won't support the democratic ticket.

Individual voters may be emphatic in stating what they propose to do. The governor may use his influence to defeat republican nominees, but you won't find any of this sort of sentiment in the republican press.

If Mr. Cook or any other republican shall head the ticket which he represents, stays in the field, the papers which have been supporting him will continue to support him until election day. If by any chance the ticket is withdrawn, the republican papers will support the republican ticket.

The press has to do with the party and not the individual. The life of the party is of more consequence than anything else, and on this proposition the republican press is a unit.

This talk about the "venal press" is the merest subterfuge. There isn't a paper in the state that has profited by the factional strife and many of them have sacrificed freely in defending what they believed to be right.

The republican press recognizes every man as a republican who votes with the party and is allied with its interests.

These men have worked together in harmony for years, and they will continue to work together for years to come.

There are more republicans in Wisconsin today than ever before, and when they get through fighting they will smoke the pipe of peace, and wonder what strange infatuation possessed them.

JUST RETORT

It is now a question as to how the administration leaders will be able to concoct an answer to Senator Spooner's bitter arraignment of the methods used in misrepresenting state affairs through the columns of a magazine. Senator Spooner in his open letter to the public published yesterday stated some facts, that will be difficult ones for either Governor La Follette or Hon. Isaac Stephenson to answer. The reaction from the effect produced by the article of Lincoln J. Steffens has come. In a strong, terse and master-ly manner Senator Spooner has torn the mask of pretense from the faces of the administration. He placed it up to them to substantiate the charges they have preferred against him, which they have, preferred against men long honored in the state and now passed to their last resting place.
Senator Spooner was thoroughly aroused and his letter shows the falsity of the charge made against him regarding his election to the United States senate in 1885.

There are men here in Janesville who remember the campaign of 1884 and the session of the legislature of 1885. Captain Pliny Norcross, again candidate for the assembly, was a member of that famous legislature.
It is absurd to even suggest that Captain Norcross has a price but such was done and was repudiated by Senator John C. Spooner. Hon.
Ogden H. Fethers was a prominent figure in that campaign. It was he who marshalled the Spooner forces in Rock county. Mr. Fethers is a man of reputation and to claim he acted as a distributing agent for Stephenson or Sawyer among the men who represented this county is laughable. Senator Spooner was elected as a member of the United States senate for his own personal worth. The country had been swept by a wave of democracy, the United States senate had been lost to the republicans, the lower house was democratic. A strong, forceful man was needed to bring order out of chaos. John C. Spooner was chosen for these reasons. He had made a name for himself on the stump during the preceding campaign, had become known to the people of the state and when he announced his candidacy for the United States senate, after election he was received with open arms throughout the state.

In his letter Mr. Spooner asks questions of Mr. Stephenson. Will Mr. Stephenson dare to answer them?

Governor La Follette has made political capital out of his Hurley investigation yet he has neglected a worse situation which exists in one of our state institutions if Dame Ru-mur can be believed, that can be seen from the rear of the executive mansion.

If the supreme court decides the factional question by the 5th of this month there is yet time to elect Cook on the republican ticket. If not elect him anyway. He is a republican endorsed by the national republican convention.

La Follette's campaign is like the experience of two Irishmen, once friends, who were running for office on opposing tickets. They decided there was to be no mud slinging but both started in to vilify the other in a truly Celtic manner.

The fair name of Wisconsin was dragged in the dust by the Trade of Lincoln Steffens, but it has now raised another champion in the person of John C. Spooner.

If Mr. Spooner will now continue his good work and make a few speeches from the stump the complexion of the coming election will be vastly changed.

Is it possible Mr. Stephenson does not care to answer Mr. Spooner's question as to how many and who he bought among the members of the 1885 legislature?

Mr. Stephenson's memory is not so short as not to remember how much it cost him to elect Senator Quarles and not get the place himself.

Stephenson forgot to tell Mr. Steffens how much he paid the legislators of 1889 to defeat him for the coveted office.

When corruption is talked of those who steal large sums hold their hands in horror when petty thieves are caught.

There are men living in Janesville who can disprove the charges that the press of the state were corrupted during the campaign of 1885.

Mr. Steffens overstepped his mark when he shot that arrow at Senator Spooner.

HIBBARD HAS THE ONLY Y.M.C.A. TENT

AT THE FRONT IN PRESENT RUS-SO JAPANESE WAR.

WHAT "FOREIGN MAIL" SAYS

Expect to Have Other Tents of Some Kind, if Money Can Be Raised.

So much attention is directed to the Japanese people at the present because of the war, that it is interesting to know concerning the work of the Y. M. C. A. at the front and especially so to Janesville people because C. V. Hibbard, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lowell, of this city, is director of the Young Men's Christian Association soldiers' comforting tent. At the present Mrs. Hibbard and daughter, Esther, are staying with her parents in Janesville. Concerning the work of the association on the field of battle the following is quoted from a letter of Y. M. C. A. from the National City Secretary of Tokyo, that is printed in "Foreign Mail," a small magazine published for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. in Japan:

The Extract.
Hibbard and his two associates sail from Kobe on Tuesday next, August 30, for Chikunampo, from whence they make for Antung. Our committee further interviewing the minister of war received from him written permission for the work and introduction to the officers in charge. The Japanese who go are, as I wrote before, Rev. J. K. Dehlah, Episcopal rector from Sendai, and Mr. T. Takahatake, assistant secretary of the Kyoto association. They go to the front as the first Christian workers with the government, permission, I think no committee but the one we have, with the influence it was able to bring to bear, could have accomplished such results just at this time.

Comforting Tent.
On the roof of the tent in large characters are the words which literally translated are: "Young Men's Christian Association Soldiers' Comforting Tent." There are a number of Japanese lanterns to be displayed in front of the tent at night with the same characters printed upon them and two large Japanese flags to adorn the entrance. Among the supplies for practical work are large quantities of paper, envelopes and postal cards. The government franks the mail of all soldiers, so postal cards of our own design are permitted. On all the above articles, the association name appears.

Other Conveniences.
There are a number of volumes of works of literature, history and fiction to be used as a loan library. There is a good gramophone, with foreign and Japanese music. The soldiers have difficulties in securing the service of barbers, so there is a generous sized pair of hair clippers for the men to use on each other, a supply of razors and shaving soap, and a supply of bandages and simple medicines and a supply of Japanese and foreign games.

Religious Work.
For the religious work there is a musical instrument and song books, a considerable number of religious and devotional books in the loan library. The Japanese Tract Society has made grant of tracts, and the American Bible society, through their agent, Mrs. Henry Loomis, has supplied us with 3,500 scripture portions.

Financial Aid Needed.
Our national committee is very eager to secure as much financial aid as possible from the associations and churches in Japan, but for the work in this tent a constant amount will be necessary in addition to what can be raised among the Japanese under pressure and depression of these war times, and if the way opens, as is very possible, for a second and a third tent before long, it will mean quite generous help for the time the work continues. Now that the work is actually established you need have no hesitancy in urging the importance of it as you desire, and I think will not be liable at any time to overstate the great value it will be directly to the soldiers touched, and indirectly to the church in all the land.

AFTER SICKNESS A CERTIFICATE

From the Health Officer Will Be Required of All Pupils Seeking to Re-Enter School.

Acting on a recommendation of Health Officer W. D. Merritt, the school board last evening decided that hereafter a certificate from the health officer will be required of every child seeking entrance into the public schools after having been afflicted with any of the contagious diseases such as whooping-cough, chicken-pox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, etc. Heretofore the judgment of the parents has been the only requisite and it is believed that this laxity has contributed to the spread of disease. Chicago and other large cities and Madison in this state, enforce this rule.

CONTRACT FOR NEW SCHOOL AWARDED

Blair & Summers To Build It—
Heating and Plumbing Contract
Went to Bloomington Firm

Last night the contract for the new Garfield school building to be located in the fourth ward for the purpose of relieving the overcrowding of Lincoln school building has been let. At the school board meeting last evening Blair & Summers of this city were awarded the contract for $9,415, exclusive of the heating and plumbing. There were three different bids in from each contractor calling respectively for the single and slate roof. The contract for the roof was the one favored by the board. The contract for the heating and plumbing has been awarded to the American Foundry and Furnace company of Bloomington, Ill. Being considered the finest system of ventilating the Smead system will be installed. This has been in use in the Madison schools for many years and proved the most satisfactory of any in use in that city. Quite a little trouble was caused at first because the bids were too high, but now the building will commence at once and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by the first of next year.

The room on the third floor in the attic of the Lincoln school building will be vacated and a room in some building near there will be rented until January. The reason for this move was the inconvenience in heating and ventilating and the danger of fire.

The matter of tuition in the grades for pupils residing in the country and staying with relatives in the city during the school year was also decided. It was determined the tuition be paid on the grounds that the scholars did not live in the city.

TRAVELED NEAR SIX THOUSAND MILES
Mayor Hutchinson Returned Last Evening After Extensive Tour of the West.
Mayor J. H. Hutchinson returned last evening from San Francisco where he has been attending the session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. He came back by way of Arizona, Colorado, and New Mexico and stopped off for a short time at St. Louis. The exposition did not impress him as being as imposing and beautiful as the Chicago world's fair but he was much pleased with "The Pike." The mayor was absent three weeks and covered 5,914 miles on the trip.

CONDITION OF THE CROPS THIS WEEK

Tobacco, Housed—Corn Is Being Cut, But Some Is Still Soft—Big Apple Yield.
All of Rock county's tobacco is now in the sheds and in the most cases is curing well. Many sales are being made at the present in the vicinity of Prorville and Broadhead at 8 and 9 cents.
Corn.
Corn has responded to the warm weather of the days of last week and finally much of it is ready for cutting. Quite a large per cent. of the crop is yet soft and perhaps never in the corn growers' experience has the cutting been delayed until the month of October as is now the case.

Apples.
The apple crop is large and the fruit will be plentiful this year. It is of excellent qualities, free from worms and bad spots. Great quantities of cider are being made for cider vinegar.
Potatoes.
Potatoes are now being gathered and although the crop is only fair, the quality is very good.

The Fields.
Abundant rainfall has put the ground in excellent condition for fall plowing and this work is further advanced this year than in most years, at this date. The winter grain is making excellent growth and will be in fine condition to withstand the cold of the winter months. The pastures are also in the prime of condition for this time of the year.

BUSINESS OF COUNCIL MEET

PETITION AGAINST PAVING WAS REFERRED.

NEW SIDEWALKS AND SEWERS

Were Ordered in Several Parts of the City—One Claim Disallowed—Mayor Hutchinson Presided.

After the session with the Electric Light Co. men last evening the city council transacted the usual routine of business. It must be remembered that the Electric Light men spoke during a recess, the recess being longer than the actual session. Alderman Murray, president of the council, presided at the opening but Mayor Hutchinson arrived on the scene a few minutes later and took the gavel. The reports of the city treasurer, municipal court, and finance committee were received and acted upon and the transfer of a saloon license from Fred W. Anderson to James Buchanan at 74 East Milwaukee street was approved, the bonds of the new proprietor being in due form.

Paul A. Bitts' claim for an overcharge of $3.78 in taxes for lot 33, Mitchell's subdivision, was disallowed on the grounds that the matter should be properly adjusted, if at all, by the assessors and board of review next year. Alderman Murray of the highway committee asked for further time to report on the petition of property-holders on West Milwaukee street between High and Academy streets that that portion of the thoroughfare be not paved this year. With this petition came a communication from Manager Wm. Murphy of the Street Railway Co., stating that it would be impossible to get new improved rails before November and agreeing to keep that section in repair if the matter were allowed to go over until spring.

Sewers and Sidewalks.
Plans and specifications for storm sewers on Washington avenue to Lincoln, on Lincoln to Park, and on Riverside street to the river, were approved. An order directing the city clerk to cause notice of the intention of the common council to lay out an alley through block 44 of the original plat of the city to be published in the official paper, was passed. The street commissioner was directed to serve notice on certain property owners on Gold street to build standard sidewalks. Brick cross-walks across Gold street at South Pleasant, across Pleasant on the east side of Gold, on South Franklin on the north side of School, on Galena street on the west side of South River, were ordered.

Special Meeting Tonight.
Permalise, was given owners of property on the north side of Center and the owner of lot 279 in Pease's 2d addition, 233 1/2 avenue to build four foot walks. Sewalk grades on the north side of Ravine from High to Madison, and the north side of Center street were called for. Five wise a ten-inch tile culvert on the north side of Dodge, across High and old gas lamp at the corner of Lin and Center streets was ordered removed. F. A. Taylor was given permission to conduct an auction on Oct. 8 without paying the license required of transients. The council adjourned to meet at half past seven this evening to take up the matter of paving. Contractor Benson's portion of the money due him for work already completed.

JANESVILLE MEN ON THE NORTH SEA

Stanley Tatman Writes in Interesting Manner of Trip Through English Channel.

From Stanley D. Tatman, who, with Dr. G. W. Fifield embarked a few weeks ago for a tour of Europe, letters have been received stating that the passengers on board the "Belgravia" enjoyed a fine voyage with the exception of two days of stormy weather. Two weeks ago today the Janesville tourists were off the south shores of England and on Wednesday, Sept. 21, the liner entered the English channel. The beautiful white chalk cliffs of the English coast were easily discernible with the naked eye and aided by powerful glasses the towers of cities could be distinguished. The channel was rough, as expected. Passing Dover, England, in the morning, the boat entered the North Sea in the afternoon. Crafts of every description and flying the flags of almost every nation were passing every few minutes as the letter was being written. On account of the strong wind it was not expected that the Elbe river and the port, Cuxhaven, would be reached before Thursday night or Friday morning. From thence the Janesville men expect to take the train for Hamburg and after spending a day there proceed to Berlin, where they propose to spend a week. After that their itinerary includes a short stop in Leipzig, a steamboat trip down the Rhine to Cologne, a visit in Paris, a short tour of Holland and Belgium, and a trip across to England, where several places of interest will be visited. The local travelers made some very pleasant acquaintances on the boat and participated in a number of dinner parties and similar festivities given during the voyage.

A MOTORCYCLE CAUGHT FIRE

And Caused Much Excitement Near Dedrick Bros' Store Last Evening.

Fred Hanson of Whitewater, motorcyclist, had a harrowing experience with his machine about six o'clock last evening. He stopped at Dedrick Bros' grocery store to have the gasoline tank filled and Harry O'Donnell in filling the receptacle appears to have allowed it to overflow, a portion of the fluid running down on the frame and wheels. The plug to the tank was not replaced. Consequently, when Mr. Hanson started to test the machine before reaching his journey, the machine became on the instant a sheet of flame. Mr. O'Donnell is said not to have paused to investigate until he was half a block away. Mr. Hanson escaped injury but the machine was badly damaged.

$1.45 per sack.

Owing to the poor threshing results which are being experienced everywhere in the northwest, wheat prices are climbing higher right along. We are obliged to raise the price of our Crown patent flour, best patent flour in the city, to $5.75 per bbl. and $1.45 per sack. We urged you to buy flour when it was $5 per bbl. After this price was out of question we urged you more than ever to buy at the rate of $5.50 per bbl. Now for those who did not follow our advice, and did not buy their winter supply of flour, we urge to lay in their supply at the present rate. It is only a question of time when the flour will be way up and these prices will look very cheap. Do not delay; every time you do it means a higher price next time. Price now: $5.75 per bbl. $1.45 per sack.

"Why not advertise?"

"I have tried that for some months in every country paper in the kingdom, but there has been no response. My father and mother must have been married in some out of the way village, in some lonely church. The parson and those who know about the marriage may be dead. In fact, it is extremely probable that they are. Mrs. Jersey was present at my mother's maid, and she might have been able to tell me where the church is. I only want to find the register of the marriage and get the certificate. Then I shall see Lord Derrington and insist on my rights being recognized. He can't leave either the title or the money away from me."

Dorothy shuddered. "Your grandfather is a terrible old man. He always reminds me of one of those Italian despots. There is nothing he would not do provided that the law could not touch him."

"And I dare say, from your description, the things he desires to do are of the kind that the law would make him answerable for."

"George," said Dorothy after a pause, "do you think he has anything to do with this murder?"

Brendon turned slightly pale and set his lips firmly. "No, dearest," was his reply, but delivered with some uncertainty. "He does not know—at all events from me—that I am seeking for a restitution of my rights, and therefore would have no reason to rid himself of this woman. Besides, I don't know if he is aware of her existence."

"It will be seen that Brendon was ignorant that Lord Derrington was the owner of the Jersey mansion and had allowed madame an annuity. Had he known this much he might have been able to shape his course better; but, being in the dark, he had to do the best he could with Dorothy's assistance. He had asked for her advice and she gave it."

"George, I should get back my birthright if I were you."

"But I may be dragged into this murder case."

"No, Mr. Train can save you from being accused of that. It is only right that you should take your proper position in society. You owe it to your dead father and to yourself to show that you have the right to your father's name."

"The first thing I shall do will be to see Mr. Ireland, my guardian. He took charge of me after my grandfather Lockwood died, and it was by his advice that I changed my name to baffle the inquiries of Lord Derrington. He will know all about the marriage and may be able to indicate where my parents went when they eloped. I have never asked him for a detailed statement, but I shall do so now. Once I find a clew I shall not rest until I prove my legitimacy. For your sake, my dear—for your sake," and he kissed her.

They parted at the door. Brendon was just stepping out into the hall when a thought occurred to him. He re-entered and closed the door. "Dorothy," he asked in a low whisper, "why did you give me the yellow holly on that night?"

"She looked surprised. 'It was to please you,' she said softly, 'and to tell you the truth, George, I thought that the holly was a proof that my mother was relating toward you.'"

"How do you mean, Dorothy?"

"It was my mother who gave me the holly," she explained. "I came from the park and told her you were going to stop with Mr. Train and that she could set her mind at rest, as I should not see you for a few days. She seemed pleased, and, taking the yellow holly from a vase in her boudoir, she gave me a sprig, saying that I could give it to you for consolation. Why do you ask me this, George?"

"There is no reason for my asking," he replied, suppressing the truth, "but yellow holly is rare."

"Very rare. I don't know where my mother got the sprig."

After this they parted, and Brendon walked thoughtfully away. Mrs. Jersey had been started by the sight of the holly. Mrs. Ward had given the sprig to Dorothy, who had presented it to him. He asked himself if there was a reason for Mrs. Ward's action.

CHAPTER VI.

AFTER his disagreeable experience in the Bloomsbury district Brendon was not very anxious to go there again, but it was necessary that he should do so if he wanted to see his guardian. From force of habit he still continued to call him so, although Mr. Ireland had long since ceased to act in that capacity. George had a sincere respect for him and frequently paid him a visit. Usually it was one of ceremony or of enjoyment, but on this occasion the young man went in search of knowledge.

Ireland was a eccentric character who collected posters, most collectors turn their attention to stamps, to snuffboxes, to autographs and such like trifles, but Mr. Ireland hunted for those gigantic and gaudy pictures which make gay the thoroughfares of the city.

He was a tall old man with rather long white hair and a clean shaven, beardless face. His usual height did away with the impression of his excessive stoutness. George often wondered at his size, considering that the man was comparatively little. Mr. Ireland was dressed in glossy broadcloth scrupulously brushed and wore an old fashioned Gladstone collar. He had mild blue eyes, rather watery, and a large mouth with full red lips. This hint of sensuality was controlled by the serenity and pallor of his face and by his life, which was as correct as his dress and as methodical as his hours.

Never was there so methodical a man. He lived by the clock, and with him one day exactly resembled another. He rose at a certain hour and retired precisely when the hand on the clock indicated another. His meals were always regular, and he had stated hours for walking, when he went out whether it was wet or fine, sunny or foggy. The man was like a machine, and George, when living with him in his early days, had often found these restrictions irksome. It was one o'clock when Brendon called, and Mr. Ireland had just finished his luncheon. At 2 precisely he would leave the house for his one hour's constitutional. Brendon was aware of this and had timed his visit accordingly. Nevertheless Ireland looked at his watch and mentioned the fact.

"I can only give you an hour, George," he said. "You know my habits."

"An hour will be sufficient," replied Brendon, taking the one chair. "You are not looking very well, sir," he added, noting the fagged air of the old man.

"I have not been sleeping so soundly as usual," rejoined Ireland. "At my age—and I am now seventy-five—I can't be expected to enjoy my bed so much as a young person."

As time was short and Mr. Ireland would be sure to terminate the interview exactly at the stated hour George plunged immediately into the business which had brought him thither. "I wish to hear the story of my parents," he said.

"I wish to hear the story of my parents," he said, noting the fagged air of the old man.

love came to marriage, and in my case marriage cannot take place unless I know that I am legitimate."

"Of course you are. I have always maintained that you are."

"What proof have you?" asked George eagerly.

Ireland hesitated and wiped his mouth in quite an unnecessary manner with a red silk handkerchief. "Your father always declared that Miss Lockwood was his lawful wife, and treated her with every respect."

"Did my father ever tell you where the marriage was celebrated?"

"No! I never asked, nor did your grandfather Lockwood. It was not till after your mother's death that Lord Derrington denied the marriage. Then Mr. Vane was in Italy and never troubled about the matter."

"He should have done so for my sake," said George indignantly.

"Certainly, and I urged him to do so," said Mr. Ireland heavily. "I was in Italy at the time, and you were only an infant in arms."

"Who was my nurse then?"

"Jane Fraser, the Scotch nurse who afterward brought you to your grandfather Lockwood when Mr. Vane was murdered."

"Do you remember the other nurse, the first one I had?"

Mr. Ireland grew indignant and puffed angrily at his cigar. "I do, indeed," he said wrathfully, "a vulgar, forward hussy. She was not bad looking either and set up for being a lady. Here he began to laugh. "Would you believe it, George, my boy, she was in love with your father and showed it so plainly that he was obliged to get rid of her?"

"What was her name?"

"Eliza Stokes. And she was handsome in a homely way."

"What became of her?"

"I can't tell you," said Ireland, with sudden reserve.

"Did you see her after she was dismissed?"

Ireland turned his cigar slowly and did not look at George when he replied. "Yes, I did. When and where it does not matter."

"But it does matter to me!" cried Brendon anxiously. "It is to know about her that I came here to see you today."

"I thought you came about your birth," said Ireland sharply.

"That among other things."

The old man looked down again and appeared to be in deep thought. He was turning over in his own mind how much or how little he should tell George. And the young man looked at him anxiously. Much depended upon the speech of Mr. Ireland. At last the silence was broken, and by a most unexpected remark. "I loved your mother," said Ireland.

"I never knew that," said Brendon softly, for he saw that the man was moved at the recollection of some early romance.

"I never spoke of it before," was the reply; and Ireland laid down his cigar to speak more freely. "Yes, I loved Rosina Lockwood with all my heart and soul. I was not bad looking in those days, George, and I had a good income, but she preferred your father."

"I am sorry to be obliged to ask you for a story of the past," said Brendon apologetically, "but it means so much to me."

"I'll tell you all I can," said Ireland, taking no notice of the apology. He paused for a moment to collect his thoughts and then began abruptly. "The first thing your mother at her father's house in Amelia square, where I went to take lessons in singing. Lockwood was famous for his method in those days, and his fame was increased by the appearance of your mother, Rosina, at many concerts. She was a most beautiful creature and was as much admired for her beauty as for her voice. Ah, what a voice! It was like the thrill of a lark, flexible and silvery, and with an immense range. She was quite the rage for a season and I was called the English Jenny Lind. Many offers were made to her for the opera stage. I dare say she would have accepted in the end had she not met with Percy Vane, and he—"

Ireland's hand clinched.

Brendon saw that the recital was painful to him, and but that he was so anxious to get at the proofs of his birth would have asked him to desist.

"Percy Vane was a handsome man and rich. I warned Lockwood that he was in love with Rosina, but the old man would not heed. He was flattered by the attention Rosina received. All through that season Vane was in attendance on Rosina. At the end of it he eloped with her—yes. He met her outside St. James' hall and they eloped."

"Where did they go to?" asked Brendon eagerly.

"That I cannot say. Rosina wrote three weeks afterward from Paris, signing herself Vane and stating that she was the wife of Percy."

"Was my grandfather angry?"

"Yes and no. He was angry that he should have lost her, for she was of use to him as an advertisement of his method of singing and also she earned a great deal of money. The house in Amelia square was large and required a good deal to keep it up. Besides, Anthony Lockwood was extravagant. That was why you were left so badly off."

Brendon shrugged his shoulders. "It was good of my grandfather to leave me nothing," he said, "but in what way was my—Mr. Lockwood pleased? You hinted that he was not quite angry."

"Well," said Ireland, "he was flattered that his daughter should have married into the aristocracy."

"Then there was no question of the marriage?"

"No. Lord Derrington said nothing till your mother was dead, and even then he said very little. It was when Vane was murdered at San Remo that he first decisively asserted that no marriage had taken place. He did so because Lockwood insisted that Derrington should acknowledge you as his heir. He refused to do so and said that his second son was the heir."

"THE AMERICAN BOY" MAGAZINE

FREE--Six Months' Subscription to This $1.00 Magazine Given With All--FREE

"All Boy" pretty nearly describes this unique departure of modern journalism. Editorially, the paper is all boy. It stands with boys and for boys, upholding manly sports and endeavor and cultivating in its readers true ideals of American manhood. And the grown-ups enjoy it, too. As one parent writes: "In my opinion, The American Boy works a two fold purpose. It makes a man out of a boy, and makes a boy again out of a full grown man."

It Is Educational As Well As Interesting.

The good thing about "The American Boy" is that while it is interesting and holds the attention of the boys, it is not of the blood-and-thunder variety, that offers its alluring poison to boys on every hand. It is a magazine for boys who do things. It is especially helpful to boys who wish to be useful and happy. It gives the experience of boys in the school, church, home, factory, store, office, and farm; it goes with boys into sports and games; it tells of boys as money-makers. It is interesting, inspiring, helpful. A chance to get it free should surely be taken advantage of, for

You will find here an assortment most satisfactory from every point—better in quality of material, better in quality of make, better in fit, and more distinctive in style than that amount has ever brought you before. Double breasted and Norfolk, Sallors and Russians; of fancy chevrons and cassimeres, plain serges and chevrons.

At $6.00 to $7.50

Juvenile and boy styles in variety, that is particularly well chosen—exclusive patterns of materials, exclusive styles in make—Norfolk, single and double breasted, straight and blouse trousers; two-piece double breasted; three-piece in single and double breasted; of fancy chevrons, homespins, worsteds and blue and black serges, chevrons and unfinished worsteds; fetching new styles for the juveniles—a host of them; sizes 3 to 16.

YOUNG MEN'S SUITS:—Fitting the young men is a problem many stores shrink. The young man is more particular than the adult and his case requires distinct treatment, besides. Locally, young men's suits should be expensively and with that air of youthfulness. We have given this branch of our clothing business unusual care. We will please the young man of 16 to 20 years as he has not been pleased before, in both suits and overcoats.

Suits, $7 to $20. Overcoats, $5 to $20.
